What it means "while traveling abroad" in this brochure?

During the period of insurance (policy period), and from the date of the insured person's departure from his/her residence for the purpose of studying abroad to the date of his/her return to his/her residence. (In the case of a single-family residence, the residence means the premises, and in the case of a multi-family residence, the residence means the room in which the insured person resides.)

If the injury or illness becomes serious due to the effects of a disability or illness that already existed at the time of the injury or illness, the insurance company will pay an amount equivalent to what it would have paid had there been no such effects.
